Texas Land Title Association Honors Denise Holmes as Honorary Member

The Texas Land Title Association (TLTA), one of the state's oldest trade associations, recently named Denise Holmes an Honorary Member during the Annual Conference and Business Meeting in San Antonio. This prestigious honor is awarded rarely and is reserved for industry leaders who have provided exemplary service to both the association and the title industry over many years.

Denise Holmes, a seasoned veteran in the title industry since the early 1980s, has played a pivotal role in shaping the future of the title industry, serving on the TLTA, TLTAPAC, and TTIGA Boards. Her influence was particularly evident during her tenure as Chair of the TLTA Basic Manual Task Force from 2014 to 2023. With her expertise and guidance, she expertly steered an extensive overhaul of the Basic Manual, working closely with the Texas Department of Insurance (TDI) to ensure its effectiveness and relevance.

Commenting on Denise Holmes' contributions, Leslie Midgley, Executive Vice President and CEO of TLTA said, "Denise's remarkable dedication and leadership have made a lasting impact on the title industry. Her strategic vision and tireless efforts as chair of the Basic Manual Task Force has defined and elevated the industry's best practices."

Denise Holmes awarded Honorary Member status by Paul R. Rodriguez, 2022-23 TLTA Board President and Leslie Midgley, Executive Vice President and CEO of TLTA.

Beyond her role as chair of the Basic Manual Task Force, Holmes served on the original Certification Committee from 2003 to 2010, the School Committee from 1996 to 2003 (where she also served as chair from 2000 to 2002), and the Education/Seminars Committee from 1999 to 2006 and 2010 to 2020. Denise's extensive volunteer work, active participation in committees and working groups, and her dedication to establishing a rigorous certification program demonstrate her enduring commitment to advancing TLTA's mission and the title industry as a whole.

Leslie Midgley further added, "Denise's dedication to fostering education and professional growth within the industry has been exceptional. Her efforts in various TLTA programs have empowered a multitude of professionals, creating a profound legacy within the title community."

TLTA proudly welcomes Denise Holmes as an Honorary Member, recognizing her exceptional service, outstanding leadership, and enduring commitment to the title industry.
